The development of digital solutions is of increasing interest to many insurers. Insurance companies, like most financial services companies continue to control a unique and valuable array of largely untapped information assets.

How insurance companies could understand and take advantage of their "information balance sheet" will become a key competitive advantage in the fast growing insurance e-business space.

The presentation will explore the development of the insurance e-business market in China, drawing broad conclusions regarding the likely future direction.

This presentation will be of interest to both life and P&C actuaries.
